9. TECHNICAL AND ORGANISATIONAL MEASURES TO PROTECT YOUR PERSONAL DATA

DARS provides organisational, technical and logical-technical procedures and measures to protect databases of personal data. The Controller thus:

- protects premises, equipment and system software;
- protects the application software used to process personal data;
- prevents unauthorised access to personal data during transmission, including transmission via telecommunication networks;
- ensures effective methods to block, destroy, delete or anonymise personal data;
- enables the subsequent determination of when certain data was entered into a database, used or otherwise processed, and who did it, i.e. for the period covered by the statutory protection of the rights of an individual due to the unauthorised transmission or processing of personal data.

In its internal regulations (Rules on personal data protection, Operational rules on procedures and measures to protect personal data), DARS has informed all employees about the procedures and measures and appointed persons responsible for individual databases and persons who can process certain personal data (the hierarchy of access rights) due to the nature of their work. Access rights are laid down by the management and are limited under the principle of urgency – access is limited to the scope that is actually needed by certain employees or sectors in their work.

In critical areas, the Controller makes periodic assessments of impacts related to personal data protection, taking into account the risks implied by processing, particularly due to the accidental or unlawful destruction, loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure of or access to the personal data transmitted, stored or otherwise processed.

Pursuant to the General Data Protection Regulation, the Controller also uses pseudonymisation and encryption for its databases of personal data. The systems and services ensure continuous confidentiality, integrity, accessibility and resilience. The availability of and access to personal data are ensured in the event of a physical or technical incident. Technical and organisational measures to provide processing security are regularly tested, assessed and evaluated.
